But after this fatal orror had been partially remedied at the indignant demand of outraged public sentiment, mismanagement almost as stupid led to the results as painful though not so momentous as those threatened by the surrender would have been. These disas-trons, humiliating consequences of weak-ness and ignorence are detailed below in a rightful narrative of carnage.
Threatening demonstrations of the riot

err, early resterday morning, revealed that the outraged cry of the people had not cured them as completely as it frightened Tammany. Sullen groups gathered on the street corners in threatened districts or in the localities where the Irish reside or in the localities where the trend resided in greatest numbers. Among these groups women were most conspicuous by the velocity which they denounced Orthogonal will not be convicted that they do as they liked with their enemies. hemence with which they denounced Or-angemen, police and soldiers alike; and children of both sexes gathered about them. The men generally were gruff and silent, evidently ungry that their opportu-nities for pillage had been wrested from them by the enforced action of the men gurdless of the policemen on their seate, who made no attempt to disarm them. In the upper part of the city the rioters began to move southward at an early hour, compelling all workmen on their routes to desist and join with them. In one or two instances movements were made against the houses of men who had protected the Orangemen during the ricts of last year, but as the ricters were without leadership they gradually dispersed before carrying their threats into execution. Attacks were made by the rioters on one or two armor but the resistance of a few determined poheemen cowed the mob. Still their demandations were so threatening before all of clock that the police were compelled. New York, and whose flattery of the mob

10 o'clock that the police were compelled to seize Hibernia Hall, and Gen. Shaler called for a regiment of troops from Brooklyn, where, as in Jersey City, all had been comparatively quiet.

New York, and whose flattery of the mob it is which has brought this last diegrace upon us, and makes every house man insecure in his home.

New York, like every great city, conall, divided counsels shmost wholly destroyed the effectiveness of the troops and police. There does not appear to have been perfect consonance of action between the Superintendent of Police and the Commander of the Millina, and to this fact will eventually be traced many of the blunders which have aided to make the riot the most serious in its consequences. Both police and troops were eager to do their full duty; there was no sympathy in the ranks with rioters. The police in the field behaved with all the readiness that could be expected or asked of them, and could be expected or asked of them, and retwertens the tools of Tweed, Sweether the Susay Hall, Connelly, and the ring of corruptionists of whom these four percentages are the leaders. A few shot were fired from houses in the avenue, be fore the procession moved, the police in one instance returning the fice by a single shot, but nothing really serious occurred until the head of the line had reached Twenty-third street, and the Orangemen were opposite Twenty-fourth street.
